OPERAS

open access in the european research area through scholarly communication

Not enough has been done yet to integrate Open Access monographs into the open science ecosystem in a systematic and coordinated fashion. That's the main goal of the HIRMEOS project. It prototypes innovative services for monographs in support of Open Science infrastructure by providing additional data, links and interactions to the documents. At the same time HIRMEOS paves the way to new potential tools for research assessment, which is still a major challenge in the Humanities and Social Sciences.
